

What is E-learning?

The study and ethical practice of facilitating learning and improving performance by creating, using, and managing appropriate technological processes and resources.

It refers to the use of both physical hardware and educational theoretics. It encompasses several domains, including learning theory, computer-based training, online learning, and, where mobile technologies are used, m-learning.

To put it simple, learning what you need online is called e-learning.

E-learning authoring tools are software or online services that enable users to create courses, simulations, or other educational experiences.
